Freelance rates & market conditions

KEY FINDINGS

&FRIENDS

• Freelance rates increased by 6% (+ $33 per day) between 2021 and 2203 from $563 to $596. This increase is the largest jump in freelance rates over the past 5 years and indicates the freelance market has not only recovered from the lows of COVID, but experienced a boom of sorts in 2022 given a number of factors including a growing talent shortage and record inflation.

• While $33 on the surface seems like a pretty big jump, when we consider the huge inflation increases in 2022, it tells a slightly different story. If rates increased at the same rate as inflation, we would have seen a circa 10% jump from late 2020 to now - This would have added $56 to the average day rate, increasing it to $619. This suggests freelance rates haven't quite caught up with inflation.

• As a broad discipline Content Creation has exploded over the past 2 years and with that rates have increased substantially. The average content creation rate increased by $84 (14%) to $683 and is a clear leader over all other categories. Strategy is second at $676 and Marketing at $601. Whats more, 4 of the top 5 most expensive roles per day are content creation related as brands and agencies are creation more video and motion content than ever before.

• While Sydney remains by far the highest freelance rates, Melbourne and Brisbane look to be catching up. Melbourne rates increased by 5% to $565 while Brisbane increased by 6% to $574. Sydney on the other hand only increased by 1% to $617 which still leads other markets by up to $43 p/d. When comparing seniority, Senior rates increased the most by $40 p/d to $609. Midnight was second with an increase of $30 to $497. Leads increased by $17 to $744, while Juniors decreased by $4 to $364

With over 8,000 freelancers on &FRIENDS, the rates in this report provide an up to date view of the Creative Services Freelance market.

The data has been extracted from &FRIENDS and represents anonymous averages from across our freelance member base. Where there are blank cells, we did not have enough data to include a rate. We have also included "* Small data set" in disciplines that have low sample sizes.

AVERAGE FREELANCE DAY RATES

Freelance rates increased by 6% (+ $33 per day) between 2021 and 2203 from $563 to $596. This increase is the largest jump in freelance rates over the past 5 years and indicates the freelance market has not only recovered from the lows of COVID, but experienced a boom of sorts in 2022 given a number of factors including a growing talent shortage and record inflation.

Is this increase in-line with Inflation?

While $33 on the surface seems like a pretty big jump, when we consider the huge inflation increases in 2022, it tells a slightly different story. If rates increased at the same rate as inflation, we would have seen a circa 10% jump from late 2020 to now - This would have added $56 to the average day rate, increasing it to $619. This suggests freelance rates haven't quite caught up with inflation.

What about the looming recession?

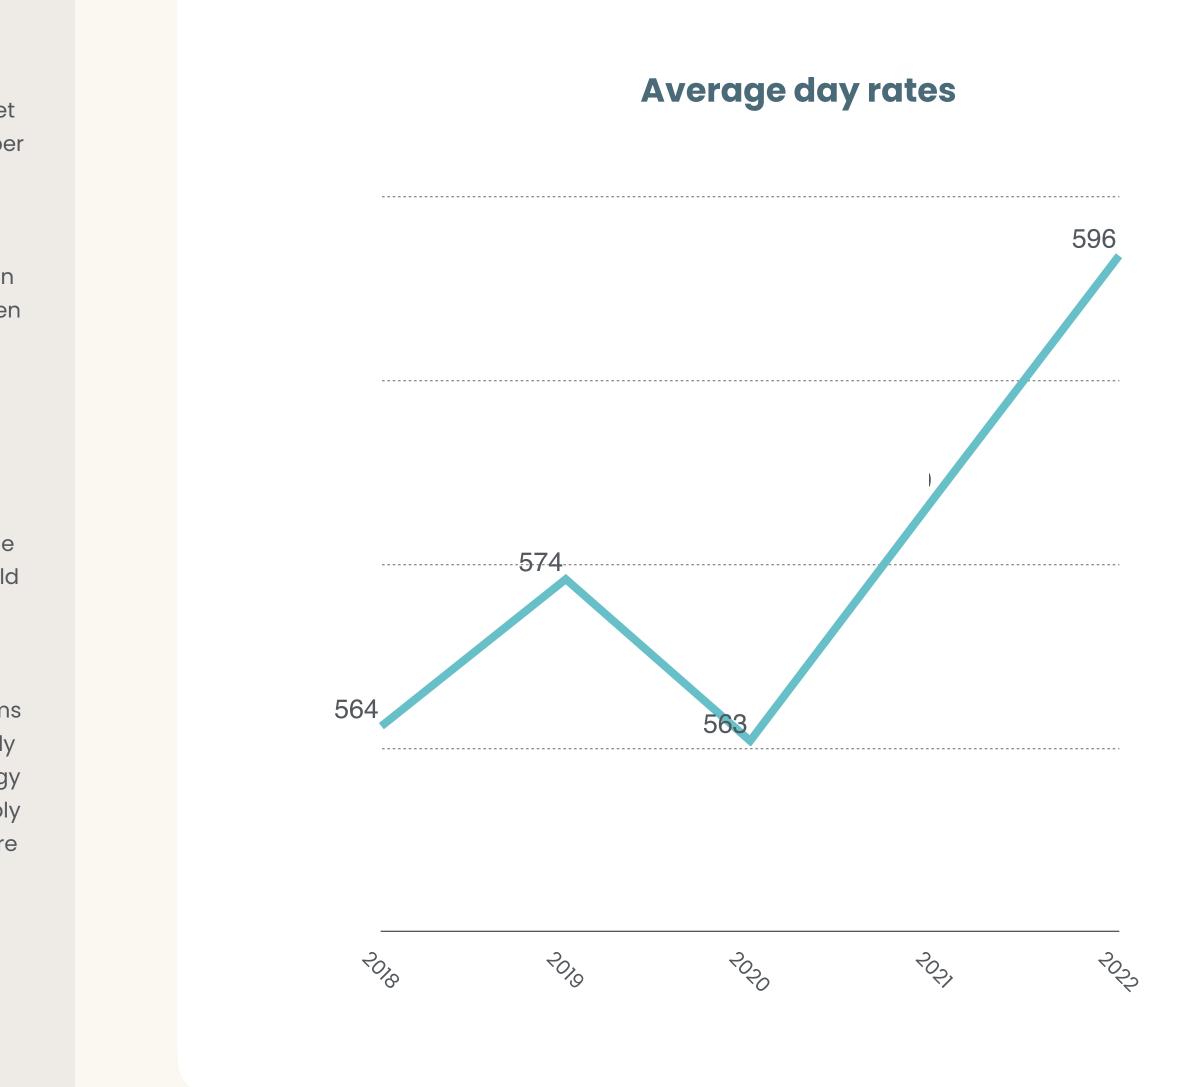

With some form of recession hitting Australia in 2023, it's safe to assume overall marketing spend will decrease or at the very least be deferred. Over the past 5 years, freelance demand has been the industry's 'canary in the coal mine', providing an early indicator of reduced marketing spend hitting the industry. Because of this, we expect to see some form of softening of the freelance market which should in some way slow down the rate increases from freelancers.

Is the shortage in talent real thing?

While there is little doubt there is a growing skill shortage in the advertising industry is very real, it seems to be acute in certain areas and not in others. At &FRIENDS, the clear areas where demand strips supply have been in the longer team contract roles such as Account Service, Project Management, Technology and UI/UX. These roles generally carry longer contract periods which makes it harder to align the supply of available freelancers with projects that have hard kick off dates. Conversely, supply and demand are much more harmonious in areas that have shorter contracts and more supply in the market such as Graphic Design, Copywriting and Content Creation.

Will rates increase or not in 2023

We'd be surprised if there weren't minor increases in rates over the next 12 months. The impacts on inflation will force freelancers to consider increasing their rates, while a softening market will temper how aggressively they increase them.

MARKET CONDITIONS EXPLAINED

When sourcing freelancers companies are at the mercy of a number of market conditions and dynamics that can make finding freelancers easy or hard.

Understanding these market conditions can help companies to mould their planning to be more realistic and achievable.

The shorter the lead times, the smaller the pool of talent you have available to respond to your gig. For specialisms that typically get booked on short term gigs, this can often be ok. However for specialisms that have a long gig length, finding available freelancers at short notice is often pot luck.

GIG LENGTH

Specialisms vary in their typical gig lengths. The duration of a Graphic design gig is usually a few days whereas a UI project could be weeks or months. This impacts general availability as well as how fluid and active the market is.

TIME PERIOD FROM BRIEF TO BOOKING

The time period for finding a freelancer can vary significantly because of gig length, nature of project and scarcity. For example, finding a copywriter is likely to takes days, whereas finding a CX Strategist is likely to take 3-4 weeks.

Demand varies dramatically for different specialisms and in turn creates different power dynamics in each specialism market. For many high demand roles like technology and UX, the balance of power to call the shots sits with the freelancer, not the company. Whereas low demand, high supply specialisms, the power resides with the company.
